

New Culling Machine Is Great Labor Saver

Puente Walnut House Is Separating "Blanks" by Machinery—House Is Crowded to the Doors With Crop, and Still Coming—Thursday Is Bud Walnut Day.

The invention of a vacuum culling machine, which has been installed at the Puente Walnut Growers' Association house at just the right time, is saving much time, and has solved a difficulty which looked as if it was going to delay the season's work of processing.

This blower, or vacuum sucker works something on the principle of the old fanning mill or air-separators, as it depends on its efficiency by the weight of the walnuts. The walnuts, as they come on the carrier from the processing cylinder, are projected into this chute, where the air carries the light nuts, or "blanks," into a separate compartment. If the nut is good inside, it has weight enough to be carried into the compartment for good nuts.

This new piece of machinery is a great relief to a situation that was otherwise of a puzzling nature.

"There is absolutely no way of telling a bad or blank nut by looking at it," said Manager Neeley this week. "The five senses are powerless before this difficulty. You can't tell by looking a bad or blank nut by looking at it, biting it, or in any way except to crack the shell. You can surmise that it is too light to be a good nut, but you couldn't prove it unless you destroyed the nut by cracking it. We can tell that a man is nutty because he is light-headed, and the same theory of lack of weight applies to walnuts. Some of us were getting a little bit nutty ourselves before we put in this vacuum culling machine. Now, we know that 99 per cent of the nuts that go into the cull-bin are really culls, and later in the season, when we have more time, we will make a careful culling of the culls now being thrown out."

Manager Wallace Gregg of the Whittier Walnut Growers' Association was at the Puente house on Tuesday, inspecting the new culling machine, and he was very enthusiastic about it. He left the house with the express business of having one installed in Whittier at once. Everywhere, through the walnut districts there is a good deal of difficulty this year in sorting out the culls, and this machine has come as a friend in need.

Manager Gregg said that there was a misunderstanding in newspaper reports concerning the method of handling walnuts at the Whittier house. It has been printed, he said, that the Whittier house was not insisting on a rigid culling of the nuts before they reached the house. He was keeping the ranchers up to a standard of 85 per cent good nuts at the house door, he said. If the nuts did not come up to standard, they were sent back for a re-culling. The Whittier house is taking care of 2,000 acres in full bearing, with 500 acres of young orchard he said.

The Puente house this week handled 80 tons of walnuts in one day. Manager Neeley says that the early estimate of 60 carloads for the season is now seen to be low. The crop will be larger than that figure. The house has shipped 25 cars up until today, and the nuts are still pouring in somewhat faster than they can easily be taken care of. The force is working very long hours and Sundays.

The ranchers are receiving cash for the nuts as fast as they are shipped which is a source of considerable satisfaction throughout the valley. Ten cents the pound is paid on the nuts being shipped, the remainder being held until a later date. This payment is about 75 per cent of the total which the rancher will receive. When the bills of lading are executed, the rancher gets his money at the bank.

Every Thursday is bud walnut day at the house. On this day all the bud-ded walnuts are processed, and the manager says that this is "Bud" Maxson's specially busy day.

BAPTIST YOUNG PEOPLE WILL DISCUSS POLITICS

The B. Y. P. U. on last Sunday evening, although leaderless with regard to the occupation of the chair, was not in spirit. About forty were present and a spirit of enthusiasm existed throughout the entire service.

Next Sunday evening the service will be in charge of Forest Manning, and promises to be one of interest. The subject is "Capturing Politics for God." Special music will be rendered and a good attendance is requested.

Here's a Good Name.

Program of Music of Unique Nature

Mrs. David Watson Accompanies at Piano for High-Class Phonograph Records—Amendment to Constitution Planned—Members Are Interested in Needy Families.

(By Myra Nye)
When thought, care, good taste and discrimination are used in preparing a program, the result is sure to be satisfactory. At the meeting of the club last Monday the Victor record program arranged by Mrs. David Watson and presented by her with the help of her sister, proved to be very enjoyable. Mrs. Watson accompanied on the piano all except two of the records, having taken the pains to transpose several of them herself. Her sympathetic touch not only added to the harmony but gave that personal not to the entertainment, which is the one thing lacking in a whole hour or so of records.

CLUB MEMBERSHIP.
At the business meeting of the club, Mrs. J. J. Morgan presented for consideration an amendment to the constitution of some importance. Briefly stated the amendment will make it possible for those not desiring to own shares in the club to become members, by paying five dollars annual dues instead of three which is the regular dues. Those joining after February will pay half the regular dues. Anyone paying twenty-five cents admission can come to any regular meeting of the literary section of the club, with the one or two exceptions, when the club-members entertain in the evening. Tourists who expect to be in town but a few months may become tourist members by paying fifty cents a month. It is required that these provisions shall be known by the women in Covina who cannot now become members but are interested and would like to come occasionally.

MINSTREL SUCCESS.
Mrs. George Fox as chairman of the entertainment committee reported a profit of over sixty dollars from the sale of tickets to "The Merry Maids" Minstrel Show. They are already started upon preparation for another entertainment which promises to be even better than the last one, which was success. Thanks of the club are due such an energetic committee.

FOR NEEDY FAMILIES.
There was a fairly generous response to the request of the philanthropic committee for jellies and fruit for a needy family. Those who forgot last Monday to bring their gifts will have an opportunity to do so at subsequent meetings.

Oatmeal

The National Dish

Nearly every American eats oatmeal—it is the national dish. It appears on the table of every well regulated home on certain mornings of the year—sometimes every morning.

But there's a great difference in oatmeals, and the kind you have been eating may not be the best. The kind that is usually sold as "rolled oats" or "crushed oats" is raw, flinty and full of hulls. It cooks into a mushy, pasty, and indigestible mass. You have to cook it sixteen hours before it is fit to eat, and even then you lose much of the solid nutriment in the oats. Before passing judgment on oatmeal as a food, it is recommended that you give the brand known as H-O Oatmeal a trial. There is as much difference between H-O Oatmeal and ordinary rolled oats as there is between rice pudding and sawdust. H-O Oatmeal is cooked at a very high temperature, under steam pressure, for three solid hours before packing. This exclusive process gives it a most delicious flavor peculiarly its own, and makes it easily digestible by the most delicate stomach. You will never know how good oatmeal really is until you have tried H-O Oatmeal. Your grocer sells it. Insist upon it.

This is Styleplus Week from Maine to California

LEADING merchants throughout the nation are devoting this week to a Special Fall and Winter Display of Styleplus Clothes—suits and overcoats. Style for $17 is the order of the day. Men have rounded a corner. Their backs are turned on cheap-looking clothes and expensive clothes. Styleplus strikes the happy balance—all the Style that proud men want at the Price that shrewd men gladly pay.

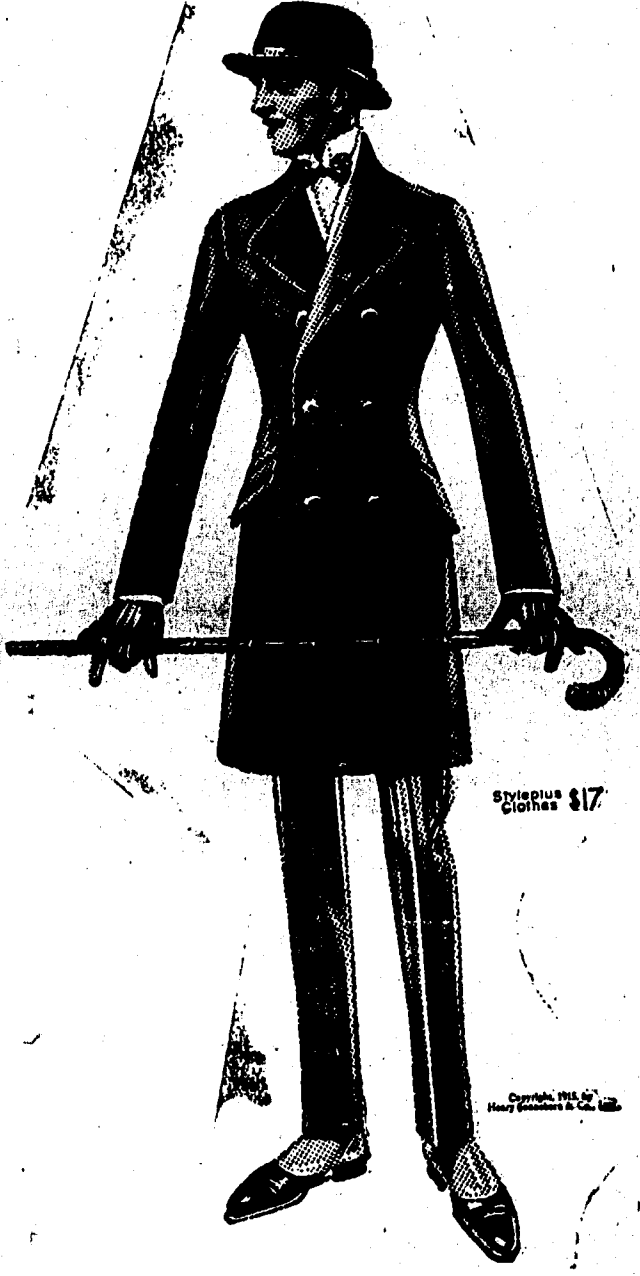

The idea that immaculate style, all-wool fabrics, and suburb workmanship could be supplied to the public for $17 was a daring conception. Equally daring and original are the manufacturing methods. Such Style at such a Price was impossible before modern methods in a big way were applied to the problem. Specialization, vast output, scientific efficiency in every department of buying and making—these are the factors responsible for the unprecedented values in Styleplus.

To you who are about to buy your new fall suit and overcoat, they mean:

- Style plus through-and-through quality (all-wool fabrics)

THE CITRUS GARAGE.
When H. N. Webber came to Covina a year ago last April and purchased the Citrus garage from Bryan & Smith, the first important thing he did was to look up a painter and the next day a sign reading: "The Webber Garage, He Makes Good," was hung to the breeze. The writer was asked by Mr. Webber to express his opinion regarding the sign and we told him that in our judgment, with a reasonable amount of luck he should be able to last a year. There was one thing in his favor and that was the new and complete equipment of his garage. He employed only the most experienced workmen and had the advantage of being located on the corner of Citrus and San Bernardino streets, where all transient traffic passed by his door. Sixteen months have passed and the genial countenance of Mr. Webber can be seen at all times of the day, busily catering to the needs of the automobilist. He not only makes good but has made good. It is next to impossible for any garage, no matter how conscientious its mechanics, to give universal satisfaction, but Mr. Webber has achieved the impossible and when a customer takes his automobile out of the Webber garage, it is not only properly repaired, but Mr. Webber makes sure that his customer is satisfied with the work, courteous treatment and reasonable charges. For many years Mr. Webber was chief mechanic for a prominent railroad company and is one of the best lathe men in the valley. Three mechanics are employed, Charles Bintliff being the foreman of the shop, and is an efficient and accommodating workman. The Webber garage is a busy place from morning to late at night, which goes to prove that the principle of fair dealing when applied to the garage business will produce the same results as when applied to any other reputable business.—California Citrograph. BOND ISSUE ONLY FAIR METHOD OF ROAD BUILDING SAYS SUPERVISOR HAMILTON

Supervisor John J. Hamilton of the first district was the speaker before the Covina Valley Farmers' Club last Saturday afternoon at the home of President and Mrs. Ben F. Thorpe on Cypress avenue. A large number of ranchers and their wives heard the supervisor's arguments in favor of the voting of the road bonds.

The talk made by the supervisor is one which he has been making in all parts of the county, the main portions of which are follows:

By Supervisor John J. Hamilton
None of the principal of the proposed bond issue of $2,850,000 for good roads is payable for five years. In the sixth year a payment of $50,000 is provided for. Thereafter, $80,000 a year is to be paid for thirty-five years.

The tax levy for interest will be two cents on the hundred dollars at the start, but will rapidly diminish as the valuation of the county grows and as principal is paid off. Good roads create new values so fast that the burden of taxes for a bond issue rapidly approaches the vanishing point. The rate of taxation for the original issue of $3,500,000 for good roads has fallen below four cents and will soon be a negligible quantity.

How rapidly good roads increase values and reduce taxation, will be seen from the fact that ten years ago the property of Los Angeles county amounted to $232,610, 753; and now, thanks largely to our superb roads, it is $862,442,180.

GOOD ROADS COST LESS.

How much easier and more economical it is to build and maintain good roads than it is to maintain dirt roads, appears from the fact that the ranchers of Los Angeles county are now paying a tax levy of forty cents on the hundred dollars just to maintain their inferior dirt roads while the entire good roads system costs them less than four cents on the hundred dollars, or, to be exact, 3.6 cents. If the ranchers realized where their road taxes go, there would not be a single vote against the road bonds in the rural districts.

The rock and oil plan of building roads, of the beneficent effects of which former Supervisor Sidney A. Butler sings the praises daily in the newspapers, is costing the taxpayer exactly three and a half times as much per year as the proposed bond issue would place upon him.

The board of supervisors were compelled last month to raise $500,000 to pay for rock and oil for road districts; the levy on all the property of the county for this purpose being seven cents on the hundred dollars, as against a levy of two cents if we had been wise enough to adopt the bond plan last year.

OTHER DISADVANTAGES.

Another point which should not be overlooked is that the road and oil assessment and direct taxation method of financing road construction does not give us roads where we need them to complete our road system, but only here and there, where the localities will stand for the terrific load of taxation and assessment this plan involves.

In addition to its other disadvantages, the rock and oil plan is wastefully costly both in interest and in higher construction cost. The bonds issued against the ranchers' road districts bear 7 per cent interest, whereas the county only has 5 per cent to pay on road bonds. As the contractor must take these district bonds in payment for his work, and must market the bonds himself in order to pay for labor and materials, he is obliged to bid about one-third higher on the work in order to protect himself. He often realizes as low as 75 per cent on the bonds.

Governor Johnson does not put it too strongly when he declares that the system of paying for public work by turning district bonds over to the contractor is "the most vicious practice ever tolerated" by the laws of California. He estimates the additional cost to the people who pay the bills at 33 1-3 per cent.

UNINTENTIONAL SWINDLE.

The rock and oil scheme so eloquently advocated by Mr. Butler and Mr. Woodley is—without such an intention on their part, of course—nothing less than a swindle upon the owner of the property thus excessively assessed. The rancher not only pays excessive interest on the assessment bonds and an excessive price for the work done on the road in front of his premises, but is at the same time called upon to put up forty cents on the hundred dollars to keep up and oil the dirt roads in his neighborhood—roads quickly torn to pieces by automobile traffic—and also must pay his share of the original bond issue of $3,500,000, and likewise the seven-cent levy for rock and oil furnished by the county.

The bond issue, on the contrary, gives the public just the roads needed to complete the county system; provides them at less cost; builds them at once, so that we get them without delay; cuts out the burdensome rock and oil levy of 7 cents and substitutes a levy of 2 cents; bring new capital into the county to employ labor and revive business; insures us a magnificent system of mountain roads and mountain parks; guarantees us against forest fires; develops splendid new territory for Los Angeles commercial progress, and will result in attracting a vaster and vaster stream of tourists to Los Angeles county.

JUSTICE OF PEACE PLEADS FOR BOOZE-SELLING FRIEND

While sitting as justice of the peace for an absent justice in San Dimas this week, Dailey S. Stafford, Covina township justice tried a liquor case which had been brought in on change of venue from Owensmouth.

The case had the unique feature of being defended by the justice of the peace where the offense was committed. The Owensmouth justice pleaded for his liquor-selling friend saying: "He only had two barrels of beer and some other stuff at his place, your honor. He's a friend of mine, and a good fellow."

Justice Stafford couldn't see the connection between friendship and the law, and he found the man guilty on evidence and fined him $200, which he immediately paid in banknotes.

COVINA JUSTICE DEALS OUT LAW IN POMONA

The Pomona Review of Monday evening writes up the Covina justice of the peace as follows:

One of the busiest men in this neck of the woods these days is Judge Dailey S. Stafford, of Covina. He is presiding in his justice's court here for Judge Hart of San Dimas, who, in turn, is presiding for Judge Barnes, who is away on his vacation. Thus Judge Stafford is taking care of Covina, San Dimas and San Jose townships as justice. In addition to this he maintains an office in Covina, is city clerk and assessor of that city and has some few other regular duties to take up his spare time.

In Pomona this morning he heard two Lordsburg arson cases and this afternoon he had a blind pig and an assault case.

Brain Workers

YOU CANNOT AFFORD TO TRIFLE WITH YOUR DIET.

Brain workers, who are careless about diet, invite their own punishment. If, after a long evening's work, instead of a hearty meal, you would try a cup of good malted milk just before retiring, the resulting sound sleep would be an excellent preparation for the next day's work.

Malted milk is a combination of rich, creamy milk and the strengthening extracts of wheat and barley malt. It contains in their just proportions the elements that supply and rebuild wastes of tissue and nerve force. Quickly prepared, easily digested, palatable and nutritious, it is the ideal drink for brain workers.

But all malted milks are not alike. If you want a real malted milk, one in which the casein or cheesy indigestible part of the milk has been partially pre-digested, you should insist upon "Borden's—The Malted Milk in The Square Package."

As evidence of its acknowledged superiority, Borden's has been awarded "The Grand Prize" (highest possible award) at the San Francisco Exposition—and it is the only malted milk dispensed at the soda fountain concessions of both the San Francisco and San Diego expositions. At all good druggists.

FLOOD CONTROL.

The subject of flood-control is now engaging the public attention almost as greatly as is that of good roads. The mountain highways proposed will be directly auxiliary to the improvements necessary pursuant to the scheme of flood control proposed. These highways will enable the engineers quite easily to visit the water sheds in question, to maintain stations for the measurement and recordation of rainfall, snowfall, and climatic conditions; and will enable them with far greater facility to study the geographic and engineering problems presented. Impounding sites in the interior of the mountains may then be reached more easily and utilized as a part of a general impounding scheme. On this account alone the proposed mountain highways should receive the ardent support of all of those interested in the question of reclamation.

MOUNTAIN FIRES AND LESS WATER.

The greatest menace to our water sheds in the Sierra Madre range, and to the consequent well being of our trees and vegetation, is the annual mountain fire. The United States government is doing what it can with the small annual appropriation available to protect these water sheds. The county of Los Angeles, which has hundreds of millions of dollars at stake, has done practically nothing, prior to the present year, in which it has appropriated $15,000 to aid the federal government to build trails over which to reach the scene of mountain fires. But how on earth, or elsewhere, are we going to reach the trails? What good are they without road connections into the mountains? If there were no other demand for the construction of the San Gabriel and Arroyo Seco mountain highways, the yearly menace of mountain fires alone would justify the expenditure of the $2,850,000 which we are to build not only these highways, but many miles of highway elsewhere.

MOUNTAIN ROMANCE

In Los Angeles today there are many who for a lifetime have looked longingly at the great mountain wall lying to the northward, to them vaguely known as the Sierra Madre mountains and they have wondered what nature has concealed amid the heights beyond—for back of this frontal barrier are heathery spurs, gaunt ridges, and noble peaks; wild canyons, boisterous streams and straggling forests—and these extend for two days' weary travel of man-a-foot, some forty miles of winding course. And the way between and over these superb eminences is sprinkled here and there with deer, mountain lions, lynx, wild cats, flying squirrels, mountain quail, and many other denizens of the Kingdom of the Wild. In addition to these, we encounter waterfalls of the greatest beauty; romantic pine forests; and almost impenetrable growths of bay, laurel, and sumac; and oaken timber. A mountain highway here would wind around peaks or slopes from which the automobilist would catch a view some times of the distant ocean, or of the intervening orchards and fields; some times, far below, of the canyon bottoms with a variety of scenery, unfamiliar and amazing to the person who spends his life amid the toil and grime of the city.

Over in Switzerland and Italy there are mountains much like our Sierra Madres, which are known to history as the Alps. Although higher and more rugged, they are hardly more interesting from a scenic point of view. These Alps have been adapted to the uses and pleasures of man by human dandiercraft, and made the supreme asset of Europe. The people of Switzerland and Italy have built roads throughout the Alps—tremendously expensive roads leading through and over almost impossible stretches of Alpine mountains; sometimes even through solid rock for long distances, and winding along and around mountain peaks and precipices, and over chasms, and bringing realistically to the mind and experience of American tourists, the fact that the Alps are as great in nature as they are in history. And for all of this the tourists of the world pay to Switzerland and Italy upwards of $200,000,000 a year. The Alps are good business and the Swiss and Italians have found it out. The Sierra Madre mountains are good business, and but few of the people of Los Angeles county have discovered it. The war is on in Europe and the American tourist is staying in America. Let us invite him to spend his vacation among our Alps, and upon the strand of our Riviera, and leave with our hotel and apartment house keepers, and among our merchants, a portion of the $200,000,000.

THE MISSION PLAY.

The towns and cities of Southern California as far north as Santa Barbara and far south as San Diego, are arranging for special days of their own on which they will send their people to pay farewell visits to the Mission Play at San Gabriel. The remainder of the present month and throughout November will be busy with these pilgrimages, as there is a universal desire on the part of the people to see the great pageant drama again before its season closes on December 4, next, and it begins its big world tour, not to return to California for several years.

Although it was the intention of the author to present his play in only the very large cities of the United States, he is daily in receipt of appeals from lesser cities to be considered in the tour. Kansas City, Detroit, Denver, Cleveland and many other cities of their population have sent urgent appeals to secure the play.

During the present season of the Mission Play at San Gabriel, which began on January 31, last, and will close on the evening of December 4, next—a period of forty-five weeks—it is estimated that a quarter of a million people will have seen this great panorama of California's history. These people hailed from every state in the union and from almost every country in the world. The Mission Play running every day, has literally "saved the face" of Los Angeles during exposition year. The local population is again flocking to the play in farewell visits before it goes away on its world tour.

THE MOUNTAIN IS MOTHER OF THE PLAIN.

Without these mountains the coastal plains stretching away to the ocean, would be as sterile as the wastes of the Mojave desert. It is not the mountains themselves, but the trees and brush that grow upon their slopes and in their canyon bottoms, which give value to them as the reservoirs of nature for the storage of the snowfall and rainfall of these vast altitudes. Los Angeles county has been made the wealthiest in the United States by the production of the citrus groves of the Sierra Madre foothills most largely, although this wealth is supplemented by that arising from beet fields and other vegetable and fruit productions of the lower portion of the county. This production is made possible by irrigation from the two great sources of water supply—that of the San Gabriel river and its tributary streams and canyons, which serve the San Gabriel valley; and that of the Tejuca river (Los Angeles river) with its tributary streams and canyons, which serve the San Fernando valley, and the city of Los Angeles; with the Arroyo Seco canyon stream in a secondary sense, which serves the Pasadena plateau.

University Lectures for Local Audiences

Interesting Extension Work of the State University Arranged for Talks Are Illustrated and Will Deal With World Governments.

It is with satisfaction that the announcement is made that this city is to have a course of six lectures in the regular extension work of our state university. Backed by the teachers in our high and grade schools, and by the Monday Afternoon club, arrangements were this week made to have Prof. Jerome Hall Raymond, Ph.D., give his illustrated lectures, six in number, upon "Typical European States and Their Problems." Beginning with Monday evening, November 1, (omitting Nov. 8, because of the teachers' institute) and continuing every Monday evening, the course would close with the lecture of December 13. The course will be given in the high school auditorium, the lantern belonging to the school being used for the very excellent slides shown by Prof. Raymond.

Our state university is making the entire state its campus and carrying to those who cannot come to the center at Berkeley, much the same work offered to resident students. To this end, correspondence classes in over sixty courses are maintained; teachers are sent out to groups of students not too far distant from the university and especially attractive courses of popular lectures are given at lowest expense throughout the state, as in this case of the Raymond course.

The story of the struggle toward democracy in six of the typical European countries, forms the basis of the sociological studies offered. The lectures are not mere talks, illustrated, but are definite and earnest discussions of the vital changes and advances achieved in these countries, and made more clear and entertaining by specially-taken, and hand-tinted photographs.

The subjects are: "Athens and the Revival of Hellenism in Greece," "Rome and the Renaissance of Self-Government in Italy," "Portugal; the Overthrow of Monarchy," "Holland; the Birthplace of Civil and Religious Liberty," "Switzerland; the Triumph of Democracy," and "Norway; the Rejuvenation of an Ancient Land." Tickets are but one dollar for two full courses of six lectures, single lectures being twenty-five cents each. After Monday, tickets will be for sale at Nash's drug store and Roberts' book store, as well as by any of the teachers and most of the club women.

Next week, the outline for the opening lecture, as printed in the syllabus printed by the university, will be given in the Argus.

PRESBYTERIAN WOMEN PLANNING WINTER AFFAIRS

Especially pleasant was the regular monthly all-day missionary meeting of the Presbyterian church, held Thursday with Mrs. W. M. Warren of north Citrus avenue. Some twenty-five ladies enjoyed the hospitality of the genial hostess, and the interesting program of both morning and afternoon. For the morning the inevitable business and its discussion, Mrs. Burnham, assisted by Mesdames Shearer, Hale and Bael, reviewed the first chapter in the book to be studied this year, the special topic being Moslem women. Charts, maps and pictures were used to explain and develop the lesson.

Following the always enjoyable luncheon hour, the study of Philippine conditions, was led by Miss Louise Pomeroy, items of special interest being read by most of those present.

Reports were given of conditions and needs in the mission work at our doors, among the Spanish and Japanese, showing excellent constructive work being done.

At the called meeting of the pastor's aid society, following the missionary session, the advance plans for the rummage sale to be held the first week in December, were discussed. The general feeling was that much actual help was given last year by selling for almost nothing; clothing and other things, to those who were glad of the opportunity to buy. All present agreed to begin at once to put aside things not needed at home, for this sale, which is eagerly waited for by those who have many for whom to provide and little with which to do it.

NOTICE.

Ladies of the Sacred Heart Aid Society will give a bazaar and supper in November. Date will be announced next week.

BIRTHS.

To Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Driscoll, October 7, a girl.
To Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Gray, October 9, a girl.
To Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Fields, October 9, a boy.

POMONA IS READY FOR BIRTHDAY ANNIVERSARY

Pomona has arranged for a big pageant on Thursday, October 28. It consists of street parades, automobile races, motorcycle races, a horrible parade, and a parade of floats. There will be band concerts, fireworks and everything of like character that goes to make a Pomona holiday. The chamber of commerce is sending out a few reasons for this big splurge, as follows:

The city of Pomona was founded and plotted, just 40 years ago, this fall. The first locomotive entered this city exactly 40 years ago.

As you know Pomona means "God-dess of Fruits." We are not only what we indicate, but more, we are widely known as "The Inland City Beautiful" and we believe we deserve to sustain our reputation in that respect.

Our parade is going to be very elaborate and do a credit to a city many times our size, even the school children from this and other communities are going to take an active part in making it a success. The schools in this and some other communities will be closed after the pupils formerly report at the usual hour in the morning.

Everything will be free in the way of entertainment; it will be clean and delightful, we will have seats and other conveniences distributed for the general comfort and welfare of our guests, who will be made welcome with a glad hand.

Our parade of "horribles" in the evening will be a regular "scream" from start to finish, and we want to advise anybody who don't want to laugh and grow fat to just keep away from here that evening.

The street dance, is also free, and it will be conducted in the right manner.

Our auto and motorcycle races will also be free, and will be the real thing.

Suitable prizes will be awarded for this event, and floats as well as other things.

At this meeting Mayor C. E. Sebastian will welcome the honored guests for the city, Dr. Matt S. Hughes for the California federation, Charles R. Burger for the prohibitionists, Mrs. M. W. Musical numbers, in charge of Mrs. Frances Graham of New York, national director of music, will be given.

WHISKEY PARTY CAUSES FIGHT WITH HAY-HOOKS

The three who participated were Tom Poole, George Cole and Roy Brown, all workmen here. The city marshal also arrested Claude Groover and C. F. Underwood this week, charged with drunkenness. They pleaded guilty and were fined in Recorder Smith's court.

Oakley is Injured in Unique Explosion

Carbonated Water Bursts Tank and Makes Mess of Two Stores—Poinsettia Proprietor Suffers Contusions of Body and Crushed Foot—Citizens Thought Germans Had Arrived.

With an explosion that shook the town, bringing a crowd of people rushing into the streets, the soda-water tank in the rear room of the Poinsettia candy shop on Citrus avenue blew out a partition in the Finch building Thursday afternoon shortly after three o'clock, and seriously injured James R. Oakley, one of the proprietors of the establishment.

Two tanks, one of which contained carbonated water, were hurled across the room. The plaster partition between the store and the room occupied by Wendleborn's department store was torn open, wrecking the shelves, and overturning a counter. Dishes in the Poinsettia were scattered about the room. The two stores were immediately flooded with water.

Oakley was at work on the two tanks at the time, and received the full force of the explosion. He was blown across the room and crushed by one of the heavy tanks when it fell. Although still retaining consciousness, the proprietor was in intense pain. Dr. G. D. Jennings was called, and the man was removed to his home in Badillo Inn. It was found that he had suffered severe bruises from his ankles to the middle of his body, and that one foot was badly crushed, although no bones were broken. His injuries are serious and very painful, but physicians say that there will be no lasting effects from the accident.

The cause of the accident is puzzling every soda-water dispenser in the city. The tank was made to withstand a pressure of 500 pounds, and was said to be at less than a 200-pound pressure when the accident happened. Erroneous reports in a Los Angeles paper to the effect that a gas explosion has occurred brought the officials of the Southern Counties Gas Company to the city for investigation.

PARENTS AND TEACHERS DISCUSS SCHOOL AFFAIRS

With a fine attendance of over a hundred mothers (and one father) and with a splendid spirit of heartiest cooperation, the first school afternoon of the school year, was held Thursday in the assembly of the Reed building, later adjourning to the new kindergarten room for a social hour, where to the music of the Victrola, new teachers and mothers were welcomed, old friends revived, and fruitade and cookies served by the eighth grade girls.

Because of some conflicting meetings on other dates, it was decided to have the school afternoon always upon the third Thursday afternoon of the calendar month, and all mothers and patrons of the schools are asked to keep this afternoon especially for school visiting and the meeting. Three of the grade rooms tied for the prize picture (to which had been added this year a hanging basket of ferns) with seventeen mothers present from each. So for the next month the teachers of the first, fifth and seventh grades will have to divide the time between their rooms.

On behalf of the mothers of the school children, Mrs. W. P. Nye voiced in graceful fashion, the welcome extended to the new teachers, to which Miss Budlong happily responded. Superintendent J. J. Morgan then spoke of the work and aims of the schools, of the rapid growth, in number of scholars, the new building at Merwin and of the hopes and plans of the year. Miss Edwards, as the new principal of the Reed and Phillips buildings, was introduced as one of the best friends a boy ever had, and gave a brief talk upon school matters of special and present interest, which won instant approval of all present.

Dr. John Miller, vocational expert, who is deeply interested in the parents at the closing meeting last June, is to spend next Friday at our schools and will give another of his most instructive and thought-awakening lectures in the evening at the high school.

NEW SPRAYING METHOD ANNOUNCED BY MERWIN

Wells C. Merwin, one of the local packing house managers, is announcing this week that he has taken the agency for a spraying process for citrus orchards that he believes is going to change methods of scale control very materially. His announcement is of more than usual interest, on account of the fact that Merwin has had long experience in the citrus business in various branches, and is known here as a conservative man.

The preparation is called "Shure-Kil," and is being made in Los Angeles. The preparation is being applied to trees for purposes of demonstration whenever requested. It is claimed that the cost of spraying 80 trees of average size is about $0.50.

Tuesday's Bond Election Very Important to Valley

Eleven proposed constitutional amendments and referendum measures are on the ballot to be voted on at the special state election, Tuesday, October 26. Nine of them are amendments proposed by the legislature and two are referendums on acts of the legislature.

Interest in the election centers in the first proposition on the ballot, which is a referendum on the legislature act extending the direct primary law to non-partisanship in the election of governor. The act amends the long direct primary law in many minor details, but the central feature is that it specifies that only candidates for United States senator, congressmen, party committeemen, delegates to national conventions and presidential electors shall have party designations on the ballot. The effect will be to place the election of governor and members of the legislature, with a few other state officers formerly elected after party nominations in the primary election, on a non-partisan basis.

VOTE NO.

The second proposition on the ballot is a referendum on a related act of the legislature, dealing with the form of the ballot. It cuts the length of the ballot about half, and it supplements the first proposition by omitting party designation from all candidates for purely state officers. Its advocates are the proponents of the non-partisan law and its opponents are those who wish state elections to remain between parties.

VOTE NO.

Extension of the terms of superior judges from six years to twelve years is the effect of the third proposition. It leaves judges still subject to recall. The contention of its friends is that it will tend to remove judges from the field of politics, since the long term will leave them free from the necessity of going into elections so frequently, while the recall will keep them responsive to the welfare of the people. Opponents of the law insist that the shorter term, of six years, keeps the superior judges in closer touch with the people.

VOTE YES.

Proposition four apparently has no opponents. It provides that judges appointed to fill unexpired terms shall hold office to the first of January following the election at which a successor is chosen. The object of the amendment is to correct the defect in the present law, which makes such appointed terms end at election day, the result of which has been that attorneys have occasionally been elected for the 'short term' by the process of having a few friends write in their names.

VOTE YES.

Rural credit is the mooted subject of the fifth proposition. The amendment authorizes the state to provide a system of land colonization, developing water and preparing the land for settlers; to establish a system of rural credits, to issue bonds secured by first mortgages on farms and to establish a trust fund for participation in the rural credit operations. The law has the two main features, first of loans on long time and low interest to farmers, secured by first mortgages on their land, and second the development of arid tracts by the state through conservation and development of water and the subdivision and sale of these lands to settlers, on easy terms.

VOTE YES.

Proposition six is an amendment giving the legislature power by act, or the people by initiative measure, to change the present limitations concerning the deposit of public moneys. The purpose of the amendment as explained by its advocates is to permit the passage of new laws that will enable the state to deposit funds at interest, under limitations that will guarantee safety as at present. Opponents declare it will result in playing favorites among the banks and sacrificing safety.

VOTE NO.

Proposition seven, concerning the initiative and referendum, provides that no law creating a bonded indebtedness and initiated by petition shall become a law without the assent of two-thirds of the electors voting. It also enables the legislature to protect initiative and referendum petitions from fraud.

VOTE YES.

The eighth proposition is a constitutional amendment extending the right of the state or county or city to condemn property for public use in the future, in addition to property required for immediate use. As the substitution now stands, the state, county or city is strictly limited in condemnation proceedings to exact immediate requirements, and no provision can be made for growth and development, however certain it may be that additional land will be required within a short time and that it will then have to be condemned at advanced prices. Its purpose is to save for the people the profits that now accrue to speculators. The measure is being generally supported by many civic organizations.

VOTE YES.

The ninth proposition is an amendment of the tax system, placing the tax system in the hands of a commission that is to supersede the state board of equalization, after January, 1919. It provides for equalization between property taxed on gross receipts and other property taxed on physical valuation.

VOTE NO.

Proposition ten exempts property used by churches for social purposes in the line of their religious work from taxation.

VOTE YES.

The last measure on the ballot is designed to give to counties adopting charters greater power of self government.

VOTE NO.

In addition to the tax state bonds on the ballot there is included in the Angeles county the proposition of $2,850,000 good roads bonds to be voted on. This is to provide funds for the construction of additional good roads in various parts of the county.

VOTE YES.

MONROVIA'S BIG DAY OF CELEBRATION

Monrovia expects to entertain ten thousand or more visitors on Saturday, when a big celebration is to be held there in connection with ceremonies of the ground breaking for the big studios of the Monrovia Feature Film Company, one of the largest motion picture producing companies in the world. The chamber of commerce of Monrovia has undertaken to furnish a program of events for the day, consisting of speeches, music, dancing, and a basket picnic on the grounds chosen by the company for its immense plant. The grounds cover more than one hundred acres, at the head of Myrtle avenue.

The great feature of the day's events is to be the filming of one of the big spectacular scenes in the photo-play, "The Argonauts," now being produced at Monrovia. All visitors to Monrovia on that day will have an opportunity of seeing just how the movie people work in a big production.

Hot coffee will be served by the chamber of commerce, and lemonade by the ladies of the Monrovia Woman's club, and everything will be free, including admission to the grounds. Monrovia invites everybody to come and help her celebrate on that day, Saturday, October 23rd.

If every man were taken at his own valuation there wouldn't be half enough to go around.

OLD FIRE MACHINES

IN POMONA PAGEANT
Fire fighting from the days of the bucket brigade down to the present high powered automobile high pressure engines, is to be illustrated by a clever and complete exhibit in the big Pomona Pageant of Progress parade on Oct. 28th, by the local fire department, which is now making extensive preparations for the event. It so happens that there is, stored away, quite a bit of the old fire-fighting apparatus which will be brought out, dusted and placed in use.

First will come the ancient bucket brigade and hand pump. This will be followed by one of the time-honored hand-drawn hose reels, so familiar in the old days. Next will come the horse-drawn vehicles. All of these ever owned by the city are still preserved.

Then will come the first automobile fire truck, purchased about five years ago by the city. This will be followed by the automobile chemical and hose cart and high pressure truck, and last will come the big new automobile hook and ladder truck.

FIREMEN BUSY.
Fire Chief Davidson, O. B. Addison and Sam Lane are all busy on the decorations, and expect to make a showing which will be worth while.

And, as this is in progress, there comes the announcement from Captain Duffy, head of the military division of the parade, that the members of Vicksburg Post, G. A. R., have consented to participate in the big event, and will have a good turn out.

This is an illustration of the enthusiasm which is being shown on every hand in the big events of the day. In the industrial section of the procession it is estimated that there will be at least a hundred entries.

A large number of entries are also coming in for the decorated float division of the morning parade.

COVINA SCHOOL TAXES ARE

LOWER THAN OTHER SCHOOLS

The Covina school district is the most economical and efficient financially of any school in the San Gabriel valley, according to the reports published by the state, which give the rate for every school in the state.

The Covina high school rate is 76.5. The rate for the Citrus union high school at Azusa is 157.5, or about twice as much. The Alhambra rate is 170; Pomona 142.5; San Dimas 103.5; Los Angeles 100.5; El Monte 95.5; Claremont 136.5; Glendale 170.5; Burbank 64.5; Whittier 136.5; Montebello 128.5; Monrovia 135.5. The Burbank school is the only one that falls below Covina, but is a smaller school. This comparison speaks very well for the business management of the local schools.

BALDWIN PARK.

Mrs. F. T. Hientz entertained Wednesday at luncheon, her mother, Mrs. W. S. Watkins, and Mrs. Westmoreland, of Los Angeles.

A very interesting talk was given by Miss Essie Elliott, domestic science teacher of the district schools, at the woman's club house last Friday. Model lunches costing from 9 to 13 cents, put up by the high schools were exhibited. The public was invited and many enjoyed the afternoon.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

By Wilbur Nye, '16.

Last Saturday we scalped San Fernando to the tune of 70 to 6. It was a walk-away for Covina. No matter which end of the field was our goal, it was like going down a steep hill to reach it. Our team's greatest difficulty was that they could not make touchdowns fast enough. They worked every play they could think of, and then worked them all over again. Jackson and Hodges at right and left end starred at forward passes. The playing of Heath, Sloan, Kerkhoff at half, and Willoughby featured. This was not a good test of our ability however, for our second team puts up a better fight than did San Fernando. The line-up was as follows: right end, Jackson; right guard, Chapman; center, Wiley; left guard, Olmstead; right tackle, Bleeker and Clague; left tackle, E. Scofield and Gowens; left end, Hodges and Sieb; quarter, Willoughby; left half, Heath and Sloan; right half, P. Kerkhoff; full back, Bashore.

This morning we play Monrovia, at Monrovia. A closer and more interesting game is expected. Both trucks will go over, and reach Monrovia by 10 o'clock, at which time the game will be called. This game will be rather important, for it will show what chance we stand in the league.

MIDDLE-STATE GROWERS

AFTER ORANGE HONORS

SAN BERNARDINO, October 22.—Back from a tour through the citrus fruit regions of central California, F. M. Renfro, general manager of the Sixth National Orange Show, declares Southern California growers must be prepared for the keenest of competition if they are to succeed in recovering from the districts to the north the world honors in the citrus fruit industry.

Lindsay, Tulare county, won the sweepstake prize for oranges in the last exposition, and has made its reservation for a far greater display at the Sixth National Orange Show, Feb. 17-24 next year. While Mr. Renfro was inspecting the big Lindsay district, the space reservation for both an art and quality display was made.

During the season just past Lindsay grew the best oranges in the world, the orange show judges ruled.

"The crop conditions are fine throughout the central California districts," said Mr. Renfro. "There is interest at Lindsay, Porterville, Exeter and Strathmore in the orange show plans for February, and there are indications that there will be substantial displays from the north. There is a vast new acreage coming into bearing and the growers are realizing the importance of advertising the fruit to extend the markets."

The detailed plans for the next orange show are practically completed.

KELLAR-THOMASON COMPANY

The Kellar-Thomason Manufacturing Company, makers of irrigation appliances, won the blue ribbon against all competitors at the Ventura county fair last week. The company received high commendation on the exhibits.

This company formerly manufactured these gates and valves in Covina, but moved to Los Angeles for greater efficiency in making and shipping. Both Mr. Kellar and Mr. Thomason still retain their legal residence in Covina.

TRUCK FOR COVINA MAIL

INSTALLED BY POSTMASTER

Instead of dragging the mail-sacks over the asphalt from the Pacific Electric car to the post-office, Postmaster Stafford has installed a truck, which backs up to, the car in front of the office. A large door has been cut in the partition of the office to allow the truck to go through.

The old way of dragging the sacks was unsanitary, and was too heavy work for the women assistants. The postmaster says that there is a steady increase in the business of the office each month, which is the best indication that the city and surrounding country is prospering.

LANGLE & GREENLEAF ARE READY TO SUPPLY GAS

F. R. Greenleaf, a rancher living on Rowland avenue, and well-known as a local architect, has gone into business with P. J. Langle, a newcomer to this country, but an old friend of the Greenleaf family in South Dakota.

The firm will be known as Langle & Greenleaf, and will deal in gas for cars, oils and general automobile supplies, at the corner of San Bernardino boulevard and Citrus avenue. The old building on the corner, which property belongs to Mrs. John Kline of Los Angeles, has been fitted up as a supply station. Later the firm will announce an agency for a well-known brand of fertilizer.

Supreme Court Reviews Liquor Case

Attorney Wells Is Carrying Question to Higher-Ups—Alleged Errors in the Minds of People Corrected by Attorney—Case Has Unusual Significance.

Attorney H. N. Wells, who is defending B. Ahart in the now interesting and famous liquor case, has taken the question before the supreme court of California. In reviewing the matters that have been passed upon to date, Attorney Wells, in a letter, says:

To the Editor of the Covina Argus:—Dear Sir:—

In order that the error contained in your issue of the 16th instant, under the heading "Appellate Court Sustains Covina's Dry Ordinance," may be corrected, I give below the decision of the District Court of Appeals, verbatim:

"By the Court: 'The justices of this court being unable to agree upon a determination of the questions presented in this matter, it is for that reason ordered that the petitioner be remanded to the custody of the city marshal of the city of Covina, and the writ discharged.'"

At the time Mr. A. M. Pence made his statement to you, he doubtless, had not read the decision, and therefore fell into the natural error indicated in the article of your issue of the 16th instant. The Appellate Court rendered no decision in the matter, whatsoever, but, for the reason that the law requires the justices of that court to agree in their decisions, the court took the only action which it could take in the circumstances. I cannot say definitely, but the language may well indicate that the majority of the court were of the opinion that the ordinance was unconstitutional. The matter will now be submitted to the Supreme court of the state of California, where it is hoped that a decision may be obtained upon the merits of the question.

I desire to state further, that the merits of the questions raised under the writ of prohibition, and thereafter, under the writ of habeas corpus, have not yet been passed upon by any Superior or Appellate court. In each instance, so far, the courts, for one reason or another, have refused to pass upon the constitutional questions involved in this case. I feel that it is simple justice to all concerned to thus set forth the fact that this case has not yet been determined either for or against the defendant.

One other error is indicated by your article of the 16th instant, namely, the statement of the heading to the effect that Covina's ordinance has been sustained. On the contrary, the case in re Luera, (the Azusa case) is conclusive upon the fact that section 4 of Covina's ordinance, which attempts to make the possession, purchase, receipt, acceptance or otherwise obtaining of intoxicating liquor a misdemeanor, is void and unconstitutional. Further, the case in re Worsham, (the Whittier case) is conclusive upon the unconstitutionality of the first clause in section 5 of Covina's ordinance, which attempts to make it a misdemeanor to "visit or be present at any place" where such liquors are sold.

The question to be decided in the instant case, is the constitutionality of the last clause in section 5 of Covina's ordinance, which attempts to make it a misdemeanor to transport liquors to such a place. This question is still undecided.

Yours respectfully,
H. N. WELLS.

LOS ANGELES EXPRESS SAYS WE SHOULD VOTE BONDS

The Los Angeles Express, leading Progressive newspaper of the state, says in an editorial printed Wednesday evening:

The chief objection that has been urged against the road bonds is that they will increase taxation.

It is also argued that instead of building the roads at the general cost, it would be preferable to form road improvement districts, to which the county should supply rock and oil, the property owners to pay the remainder of the cost of road construction.

Now, contradictory as the statement may appear, it is nevertheless a fact that the authorization of the proposed bonds will reduce taxes. Not one dollar of the principle will be required to be paid before 1921. The interest charges will be greatly less than the amount the county would otherwise necessarily expend in providing work for the unemployed.

Last winter some $200,000 was thus expended for unproductive labor. If the bonds are authorized, the unemployed can be put to work in highway construction. As against the interest on the bonds, balance the sum that will otherwise be expended in finding work for the unemployed and the county will be nearly $60,000 better off for adopting the bond plan.

The adoption of the rock and oil system for road construction as an alternative to issuing bonds would be both unfair and expensive. Several years ago bonds were authorized for the construction of 300 miles of highway. The roads were built mostly in territory directly tributary to Los Angeles. Sections of the county that received no benefit whatever from the expenditure then made for the building of the 200 miles of good roads are paying their full share of taxation to meet the sinking fund and interest requirements on the bonds then issued. It is unfair to change the system now. It would be unjust to refuse to authorize these bonds and so practice a gross discrimination.

We have stated that it would also be more expensive. Under the rock and oil system the whole cost of the roads to be built would have to be defrayed practically at once. Under the bond system it would be paid in cash installments. Surely the first method, the rock and oil plan, in a time of financial stress and strain, would work by far the greater hardship and impose the heavier burden.

Moreover, highway construction by means of a bond issue will put in circulation at once $2,850,000 of eastern money that will find its way into every channel of trade and every line of business. The Evening Express appeals to its friends and readers to give the bond issue their hearty support. Thereby they will best serve the public interest.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL NOTES.

Last Monday in the Reed building, there was a meeting of the following people to discuss inter-school athletics for boys: Mr. Hall, principal, San Dimas; Mr. Farmer, coach, Glendora; Mr. Linderman, principal, Duarte; Mr. Baker, principal, Azusa; Miss Edwards; principal, Covina; Mr. Hogg, Covina; Mr. Morpan, Covina. Mr. McDonald of the Y. M. C. A. presided over the meeting. After discussion it was decided that no pupil shall take part in games with other schools whose work in all subjects is not passable. A clean moral standard is to be maintained by all participants in the games.

Most of the games will be played on school days, after 3:30, so as to take no school time. Mr. McDonald has arranged the schedule between schools. We will play tennis, baseball, basketball and maybe soccer.

Mr. Hogg has organized a basketball team for boys. Charles Dancer was appointed captain; Carrol Nye, manager; Harold Nigg, assistant manager. There is some good material, and we hope to have a winning team. The first game will be played with Duarte next Wednesday on the Covina court.

Thursday was the regular mothers' meeting. After listening to the speeches in the Reed building, the mothers enjoyed a social time in the kindergarten of the Philips building. The room was decorated very tastefully with different flowers. Punch and wafers were served by the eighth grade girls. The wafers were made by the girls of the seventh and eighth grades, under the direction of the domestic science teacher, Miss Eliot. The prize of a picture and a plant for the most mothers, was tied by the rooms of Miss Jennings, Mrs. Holt and Mrs. Mohr.

—DOROTHY KING.

PLANS ARE ORDERED

FOR $300,000 CHURCH The board of trustees of the first Methodist church of Los Angeles, in anticipation of beginning construction next year of the proposed new $300,000 church home, has given orders for completion of plans for the edifice, which will be located at the southwest corner of Eighth and Hope streets.

The architect of the new edifice is John C. Austin, who also planned the church building at Sixth and Hill.

Covina High Wins From San Fernando

Covina high school won a football game from San Fernando Saturday afternoon on the home grounds. The score was 70 to 6. It was the first game, either school has played in the valley league championship series, and judging by the score it would appear that Covina was just about the best football team that ever stepped on a gridiron.

Not for one minute would we detract from the honor due the local youngsters for the skill they showed in getting the ball from one end of the field to the other for touchdowns, but it would hardly be fair not to mention the poor competition afforded by the San Fernando men. With the exception of Dunn at right end the visitors were never in the game. They had no chance whatever on the offense, and when it came to checking the bucks and runs of the Covina boys, they showed but a scant knowledge of the great inter-collegiate sport.

Covina has a long way to go if they figure in the race for the championship of the league. They are not going to have many easy times like last Saturday, and despite the splendid score they piled up, they can do a lot to improve their team work. Coach Means has worked wonders in the few weeks he has had the men in hand, and with the players getting right in fighting all the time, and backing their coach up in everything he says, Covina should figure very strongly at the top of the percentage column.

In the San Fernando game Heath at left half showed some real football head. Many of the old timers who have played the game in years gone by, were highly gratified to see him pick out the holes in the opposing line. He runs with his feet well apart, and is a hard man to tackle. Willoughby shows talent at quarter, while Kerkhoff and Sloan played well in the backfield. Bashore at full back has the weight, but does not use it to the best advantage. With a little more fight in his play he should be a big asset to the team.

On the ends Jackson and Hodges were particularly active, and figured in most of the long gains by the forward pass play. Jackson is especially adept at this style of offense. The men on the line put up good competition, but slowed up as the game progressed, due to lack of condition.

Today the team goes to Monrovia for their second game. The lineup will be largely the same as in the opener, with the exception of Warren at half, Kellenburg at center, and E. Scofield at half.

Many a man has discovered after mixing politics with his business that he has poor politics and no business.

Such things as come to the man who waits are seldom the things he has been waiting for.

WORK IN PLINY IS PROMISED FOR TRAMP

How to handle tramps was the theme of a discussion participated in yesterday morning at the chamber of commerce by representatives of Los Angeles, Riverside, Orange and San Bernardino counties who met to thrash out the subject with chief of police G. E. Shively.

The proposal of concentration camps at every commonly frequented entrance to the southern counties where 'hobos' may be taken from freight trains and highways and put to work on rock piles for sixty days met with unanimous approval. Each delegate to the meeting pledged himself to return to his board of supervisors and urge immediate enactment of an enabling measure for the establishment of the camps in that county.
